From a cold lead to a booked engagement — the advisor supports every step.

The advisor workspace

- Three panes: client book + navigation (left), the AI advisor (centre), and the open family's profile + live recommendations (right).
- Ask in plain English — the advisor routes your question to specialist agents and answers with citations and open-in-panel links.
- Suggestion chips below the box get you started.

Client book

- Every family office in one filterable table — AUM, domicile, stage, family, current services.
- Filter by lifecycle stage (lead · onboarding · client).
- Click a name to advise on them; ‘Open’ for the full profile; ‘+ New family office’ to onboard a lead.

Coverage matrix

- A family × service grid: held, recommended, or whitespace at a glance.
- Spot cross-sell opportunities across the whole book in one view.
- Click a family to jump to the advisor.

Relationship graph

- Two modes: the cross-sell schema (how services bundle, with weights) and the client book (families ↔ the services they hold and are offered).
- Click a node to open the service or the family.
- The cross-sell graph is what the engine traverses to find bundles.

Analytics dashboard

- Top line: family offices, recommendations, pipeline value, acceptance rate.
- Upsell funnel, pipeline value by category, average allocation, interest heatmap.
- Activity trends — conversations and recommendations over the last 12 weeks.

Documents & insights

- Upload portfolio summaries, trust deeds and inventories (txt, csv, md, PDF).
- Attach to a family and the AI extracts a profile — asset mix, pain points, services in place — and refreshes their recommendations.
- Stored in Azure Blob Storage.

How recommendations are made

- A transparent rule catalogue fires on the profile (services, asset mix, pain points, AUM, stage).
- The cross-sell graph expands the candidate set; an AI layer re-ranks and rewrites each rationale in a relationship-manager voice.
- Every recommendation is traceable to the rule or graph edge behind it.
- All family-office data is synthetic — no real client data is used.
